

The Daily Courant.

Numb. 6343.

Monday, February 19. 1722.

London, February 19.

On Saturday arrived a Mail from Holland, and one from Flanders, and Yesterday one from France.

Malaga, February 3.

ON Manoel Josepho Mariniques having sailed from Cartagena with two Gallies on the 10th of the last Month, come up on the 12th following, near Castel de Ferro, with an Algerine Corsair of 16 Guns and 87 Men, which he took after a smart Engagement, having killed 18 Moors, and wounded 14; two Christian Slaves being on board the Corsair, have regained their Liberty.

Madrid, Feb. 10. The Princess of Asturias being so far recovered from her late Indisposition as to be able to walk about her Chamber, 'tis believed the publick Rejoycings on account of her happy Arrival and Marriage with the Prince of Asturias, will begin to be celebrated in a few Days. The Duke de St. Simon, Ambassador of France, having received Orders from his Court to continue his Residence here, has therefore caused the Arms of France to be set over the Door of his Hotel. A Packet Boat lately arrived at Gallicia from America, brings Advice, that the Galleons which sailed from Cadiz the 21st of June last, were arrived in Safety at the Port of Cartagena on the 3d of August following.

Hamburg, Feb. 17. Yesterday at Night M. Duval, the Duke of Holstein's Steward, arrived here from Petersbourg, but says nothing of any likelihood of his Master's marrying the Czar's Daughter. One of the Duke's Councillours of State, named Creutz, having some Days ago reproached the Great Chamberlain M. Roepstorff, that the Duke had been ill advised by those Persons who counsel'd him to enter into Engagements with the Russians; M. Roepstorff endeavoured to throw off the cause of Blame from himself, by answering, That whosoever imputed that Step to him was a——. Upon this M. Creutz threw a Plate in the Face of M. Roepstorff, and both drew their Swords; but the Company prevented further Mischief. It is said that the Czar is on the Road to Astracan; that he sent Orders to the Admiralty at Petersbourg to send after him 3 or 400 Seamen, and 30 or 40 Ship-Carpenters, to build Vessels at Astracan designed for Commerce with Persia. The last Advices from Stockholm say, the Reduction of the Troops is countermanded, and that it was expected Orders would be sent to Carlsoon to keep the Fleet in good Condition.

Brussels, Feb. 19. The Count de Windisgratz, Second Imperial Plenipotentiary, did not arrive here till the 16th Instant, having flopt a few Day by the Way at Mons.

Paris, Feb. 21. The Princeps Ragotski, who came hither about five or six Months ago, died on the 18th Instant at Night of a Quinsy, after two Days Sickness. The Dutches Dowager of Orleans, to whom that Princeps was related, is gone into Mourning for her, as is also the Duke Regent. The Chancellour and Dukes and Peers, have acquiesced with the Cardinals having the Precedency in the Council of Regency. The Bishop of Alais writes the 2d of February that none had been taken sick of the Plague that Day neither in the Town nor among those performing Quarantine, and that the two preceding Days only one Woman and a Child died in the Infirmary. M. de Vieussens a Physician at Alais, in his of the 3d of February, sends the same Account, and that there were 34 sick in the Suburbs in a fair way of Recovery. M. Bernard the commanding Officer at Alais, writes the 30th of January, that the last Person who was taken sick there had Tumours without a Fever, which had not been observed before, his Tongue and his Eyes were not at all changed, and the Physicians concluded the Distemper was on the Decline. M. de Launoy the commanding Officer at Pietrelatte, writes the 5th and 7th of February, that Dauphiné is still in a good State of Health, and the Line well kept. He had been informed, that the Plague had decreased a little at Avignon, and that the Places which had been infected in the Comtat grew better likewise. It was reckoned that Orange had perfectly recovered.

Paris, Feb. 25. Two of the King's Ordinances are said to be at the Pres; one enjoyning all Military Officers to repair to their respective Posts by the 25th of next Month; and the other, requiring an exact Review of each Company to be made monthly; also commanding the Officers to have their Companies compleat against the first Review; which will be no difficult Matter, Recruits being now levied with all possible Success.
